Conclusion

- Remain positive on the medium-term outlook, especially in the context of continued strong Chinese economic growth, despite the trend toward monetary policy tightening
- Emerging market disinflation anticipated in H2 2011, but short-term supply issues in China as a result of environment crises (drought; floods) may cause delays
- Well supported Oil and Metals prices remain a critical driver of success
- Short-term caution on economy and market; prepared to add downside protection if and when required
- Substantial Private Equity transactions executed during the last 12 months; focus has turned to active management while keeping an eye on potentially attractive exit opportunities
